TOGETHER, ENDING HUNGER IS POSSIBLE.

Rising Food Costs

We all have probably noticed a bigger bill at the grocery store of late. Inflation, supply chain issues, and transportation challenges have driven the price of food up. Similarly, you may notice an increase in the price of some purchased products on our order form, as the food bank is not exempt from these rising prices.

Feed My People, however, is committed to keeping the shared maintenance fee at its current level of $0.16/pound.

We are doing everything we can to make sure you can get the food that you need for the guests of your programs.

Kwik Trip Voucher Price Update

Vouchers are meant to supplement your food distribution. They are a shared cost between FMP, Kwik Trip, and the partner agency. Over the years food prices have increased and the cost of the vouchers have not. This, coupled with inflation, has shifted a significant cost burden for the vouchers to FMP. After evaluating current food prices, FMP has decided to adjust the voucher price to better reflect the shared cost between the partner agency, Kwik Trip, and FMP. The new prices are on the voucher order form that you can find on our Network Partners webpage. Going forward, FMP will evaluate the price of the vouchers quarterly to increase or decrease the costs as appropriate.

Reach Out to Us if Needed

In the coming months, if inflation and rising prices create a significant challenge for your hunger relief program, please reach out to us. We want make sure you can continue to do the important work of getting food to our neighbors in need.
